This is a working inventory of Johns Hopkins community engagement in Baltimore City, inclusive of student, staff and faculty participation in programs or organizations.
The Community Engagement Inventory (CEI) is a working inventory of Johns Hopkins community engagement in Baltimore City, inclusive of student, staff and faculty participation in programs or organizations. A searchable web interface version is available online at cds.johnshopkins.edu/cei. A print edition is produced annually. The CEI is compiled, managed and maintained by the Johns Hopkins Office of Government and Community Affairs (GCA).

Government and Community Affairs works to build and strengthen Johns Hopkins’ relationships with a wide variety of stakeholders whose interest and support are vital to the mission of Johns Hopkins. GCA staff members serve both the Johns Hopkins University and the Johns Hopkins Health System by representing and coordinating the efforts of both institutions at the federal, state, and local levels and in surrounding communities.

The GCA Office represents the multi-institutional Baltimore campuses in planning, implementing and coordinating comprehensive approaches to community issues. Through interfaces with a broad range of nonprofits and local community organizations working to improve health, education, housing, public safety, employment, and economic development, the Office also plays a supporting role in a wide variety of community and economic development projects, all with the ultimate goal of improving quality of life in Baltimore City.

An annual account of the Johns Hopkins Health System hospitals’ community engagement is contained in the annual Community Benefit Report submitted to the Health Services Cost Review Commission (HSCRC) and can be viewed on their website: http://www.hscrc.state.md.us

For inclusion in the Community Engagement Inventory, please email gca@jhu.edu or visit the website at cds.johnshopkins.edu/cei

Adolescent Intensive Outpatient Treatment (AIOP) Hospitalization Program
The Adolescent Intensive Program is an after-school day hospital program targeting adolescents ages 12 to 18. This program offers a complete psychiatric and psycho-social evaluation, occupational therapy assessment, family therapy, nursing support and, if necessary, pharmacotherapy. The patients participate in a variety of groups, including occupational therapy, problem solving, and behavioral psychotherapy. Each adolescent has an individual therapist. Family members are also involved in treatment through weekly family therapy meetings. Socialization and recreation therapies round out the treatment.

Adult Autism Center
The Adult Autism Center provides comprehensive mental health services for adults over the age of 18 with psychiatric illness and mild to moderate intellectual disability or developmental disabilities. In the past, psychiatric illness was often unrecognized and untreated in people with intellectual disability. There is a general agreement today that people with intellectual disability are more likely to suffer mental illness. The program was designed to meet the unique and complex needs of this patient population and is committed to providing expert assessment and treatment.

Adult Case Management at
Bayview Adult Community Psychiatry Services

The Casework Advocacy Program provides case management services to a target population as defined by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene in the East Baltimore community. Case managers help clients access needed community services while encouraging them to live as independently as possible. The program provides home visits, entitlement procurement, and assistance with housing, service coordination, help with medication, and wellness education. Services are currently available for Baltimore City residents although some exceptions can be made for adjacent county residents. All clients must be authorized for service by APS Health Care, the company that provides administrative services for mental health care for the Medicaid program in Maryland.

ALIVE Study
Over two decades of research on HIV infection among injection drug users, the ALIVE Study (AIDS Linked to the IntraVenous Experience) has become the longest-running investigation of its kind and has made myriad contributions to the study of HIV/AIDS. Based at the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health and conducted in Baltimore, Maryland, ALIVE is an observational cohort study that tracks 3,000 injection drug users. Developed in 1987, the community-based study is funded by grants from the National Institutes of Health (NIH).

Birth Companions Program
Doulas, or birth companions, support women before birth, during labor, and after the birth with their continuous presence and complementary interventions. They provide emotional, informational, and physical support to women and serve as an advocate during the entire childbirth process. Student nurse doulas provide physical, emotional and educational support and attend births at the hospital of the mother’s choosing in the Baltimore metropolitan area. The Birth Companions Program was one of six organizations nationally recognized as a finalist for the 16th annual Monroe E. Trout Premier Cares Award in 2009.

B’More for Healthy Babies

B’More for Healthy Babies is built on the realization that reducing infant deaths will happen only if people throughout the community play a part—whether it’s the leaders of the key city agencies, physicians, nurses and social workers; community groups and teachers; or fathers, grandmothers, caregivers and pregnant women themselves. Since 2009, B’More for Healthy Babies has mobilized families, communities, health providers, and policymakers to prevent infant deaths and promote better family health. Nonprofit groups in three communities—Patterson Park North and East, Upton/Druid Heights and Greenmount East—receive funding and training to increase community involvement and collaboration at all levels of the service-delivery system.

Camp Sunrise

Camp Sunrise is maintained and sponsored by Johns Hopkins Sidney Kimmel Comprehensive Cancer Center’s Division of Pediatric Oncology with 100 or more patient campers. Camp Sunrise is a week-long summer camp held in early August in Maryland, for children who have been diagnosed with or have survived cancer. Campers are given the opportunity to establish strong peer relationships with the other children they can relate to that are going through the same experiences and feelings as they are with their cancer treatment. At Camp Sunrise, campers also gain independence from the regimen of cancer treatment and enhance their self-confidence by trying new activities offered while attending the camp.

CAPABLE

The Community Aging in Place—Advancing Better Living for Elders (CAPABLE) pilot is a client-centered home-based intervention to increase mobility, functionality, and capacity to “age in place” for low-income older adults. CAPABLE is comprised of an occupational therapist intervention, a client-centered nurse intervention and safety and access handyman services. Each service synergistically builds on the others by increasing the participants’ bio-psycho-functional capacity to function at home. This is theorized to avert costly health utilization by increasing medication management, problem-solving ability, strength, balance, nutrition, and home safety, while decreasing isolation, depression, and fall risk. The goal of the pilot is to assess feasibility, titrate intervention dose, and understand tri-service coordination.

Center for Learning and Health

The Center for Learning and Health (CLH) is a treatment and research unit dedicated to developing and evaluating interventions to reduce drug addiction and improve health. Extensive evidence from the laboratory and the clinic suggests that drug addiction can be viewed as operant behavior and effectively treated through the application of principles of operant conditioning. CLH is devoted to developing interventions that directly apply these conditioning principles to increase existing behaviors and to build new behaviors needed for a healthy lifestyle.

Creative Alternatives

Creative Alternatives is an innovative program that serves adults who have serious and persistent mental illness and who have not benefited from traditional services. The program combines mental health treatment, rehabilitative services and assistance with daily living. Program participants (called members) have the opportunity for community integration and personal growth. Creative Alternatives works with members in hospitals, shelters, and in the community. On entering the program, members receive services from a team of professionals that includes a psychiatrist, nurse, case managers and community aides. A team member is available 24 hours a day in the event of a crisis or just to offer reassurance. Specialists in employment, social/recreational and entitlement programs also support the members.

Days at the Market
The award-winning program, Day at the Market, is held twice a month at Northeast Market in East Baltimore. It brings nurses, clinicians, safety experts, and other caregivers face to face with citizens to offer tips on cancer prevention, detection and healthy living. One day a month focuses entirely on cancer education, prevention and screening. Information on clinical trials is provided as well as assistance in obtaining health insurance through the Affordable Care Act. The program received recognition from the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene and an award from the Maryland Cancer Collaborative, the group that oversees the Maryland Comprehensive Cancer Control Plan.

Early Psychosis Intervention Clinic (EPIC)
The Early Psychosis Intervention Clinic is a specialized treatment program for patients who are currently experiencing an initial psychotic episode or have received a diagnosis of a psychotic disorder within the past year. The program provides comprehensive psychiatric evaluations, second opinion diagnostic consultations, individual therapy, family support and education groups, and medication management services. EPIC has direct access to child and adult psychiatric rehabilitation programs, partial hospitalization services, a sheltered employment program, case management and mobile services, as well as referrals for neuropsychiatric testing when necessary. The program is designed to provide immediate treatment in order to reduce psychotic symptoms, avert hospitalization, improve compliance with outpatient services, and improve overall day-to-day functioning across all settings.

Expanded School Mental Health Program
The Expanded School Mental Health Program is located at various southeast Baltimore public schools. Therapists based in these schools work closely with school and county staff to provide individual, family, and group counseling as well as crisis interventions for children and families. The team can make referrals for testing and further treatment. The multi-disciplinary professional team includes a child psychiatrist who goes to each school for scheduled medication consultations. The team also works with individual schools to address their specific mental health needs. Children and their families must have Medical Assistance or be eligible for it.

Food and Faith
Food and Faith consists of two programs. Program I brings a series of lessons on nutrition and health to a diverse population of recent immigrants and the faith community to cultivate community gardening as a means of attaining healthy food options and enhancing the buying power of fixed income neighbors. Through this collaborative effort, agricultural expertise and resources are shared. The project has expanded gardening to additional properties and incorporated rain barrel teaching and other effective gardening techniques. Program II brings a series of lessons on nutrition and health combined with a biblical mandate to change to healthy eating. Faith and food combines faith based mandates to live healthy with cooking and meal preparation using an African heritage diet.

Food as Medicine
Food as Medicine is a Johns Hopkins student group dedicated to improving the health and wellness of the students at two Baltimore City Public Schools. The program partners with Elementary/Middle schools to provide: (1) interactive health and nutrition workshops for students, (2) a health focused after-school program, and (3) school-wide health events. The weekly workshops address the Maryland Common Core Curriculum Standards for nutrition. The Food as Medicine program aims to promote healthy behavior changes by not only empowering students to think critically about leading healthy lives, but to also act on the lessons learned throughout the program. Together, the Food as Medicine participants and volunteers strive to promote a culture of health and wellness at the Elementary/Middle Schools.

Green & Healthy Homes Initiative

The Green & Healthy Homes Initiative is committed to the creation of resources, programs, and policies to prevent childhood lead poisoning and home-based environmental health hazards. The coalition works in collaboration with families, community organizations, educators, government agencies, insurers, property owners, and health care providers to construct real, attainable and cost-effective means to create lead-safe and healthy homes. The coalition is dedicated to the primary prevention of childhood lead poisoning and the creation of healthy home environments that eradicate environmental and social injustices and result in healthier children, better school performance, the revitalization of housing stock and more productive communities. Volunteer opportunities range from assistance with office duties to outreach and speaking engagements.

Institutes for Behavior Resources, Inc. - REACH Substance Abuse Treatment

REACH’s services include assessment and treatment planning, limited somatic care, pharmacotherapy, case management, referral, and counseling services. REACH uses an evidence based treatment approach called Responsive Step Care which matches the intensity of treatment provided to patients based on how patients are responding to treatment. Additional service provision is enhanced through a close collaboration with local health care providers. A full continuum of substance use disorder treatment services is provided in a cost-effective manner through the delivery of therapeutic services from centrally located site. The REACH program also expands access to care through the development of full service substance abuse programs or partnerships with existing psychosocial programs and their community service agencies in suburban/rural communities where services are not readily accessible.

Intensive Outpatient Program for Adults (IOPA)

Intensive Outpatient Program for Adults (IOPA) is an intensive outpatient program that is part of the continuum of services offered in Adult Outpatient Services. When a patient needs more support and treatment than is generally available in a traditional outpatient mental health setting, a referral may be made to IOPA. A team of mental health professionals provide short-term, urgent psychiatric treatment for patients who are able to function safely while they continue to live in the community. Patients may attend the program in the morning, Monday through Friday. A typical treatment day may consist of an individual and two group psychotherapy sessions as well as medication reviews by the psychiatrist two to three times a week. Transportation is usually provided to and from the program each day. Upon discharge, most patients return to their former outpatient therapist.

Johns Hopkins Children’s Safety Center (CSC)

The Children’s Safety Center opened in 1997 as the first-of-its-kind hospital-based safety resource center in the United States. Safety experts at the Johns Hopkins Children’s Safety Center work with both parents and health care providers every day answering questions, providing advice, and offering services and safety products in an effort to reduce unintentional injuries, the leading cause of death among children. Located in the Johns Hopkins Children’s Center adjacent to the Pediatric Emergency Department, the CSC is a home-like environment where families can try a variety of home safety products, receive free personalized safety education, and purchase low-cost safety products (e.g., smoke alarms and batteries, cabinet locks and latches, stair gates). The CSC has continued as a community service project and is open to all Johns Hopkins visitors. Since its inception, it has served more than 10,000 visitors and distributed thousands of safety products.

Medicine for the Greater Good

At the Johns Hopkins Bayview Medical Center Internal Medicine Residency, the aim to change all this with didactic and experiential learning that will 1) promote more effective communication with the lay public, 2) enhance physician engagement in communities and support systems, and 3) provide trainees with a rich understanding of the social determinants of health locally and globally. When successful, scholars will be trained physicians who are not only effective at diagnosing and treating diseases, but will understand their roles and be skilled in promoting health of patients and populations alike.

Mental Illness and Substance Abuse (MISA)

The Mental Illness and Substance Abuse treatment team provides services to persons who have both mental health and substance abuse problems. MISA is a drug-free, abstinence based program. The team is particularly skilled in helping people with serious and persistent mental illness that also experience difficulty due to alcohol or drug abuse/dependence. Case management services are available. Individual and group psychotherapy, as well as urine screens, are a core part of the treatment structure. The team will coordinate treatment services with the psychiatric rehabilitation teams at the Adult Psychiatric Rehabilitation Program for many of the MISA patients.

Mi Espacio

“Mi Espacio” is an afterschool youth leadership development program sponsored by CASA de Maryland. The primary goal of the program is to provide a supportive environment where Latino high school students can gain the confidence, skills and knowledge they need to graduate from high school and achieve their post-secondary dreams. The model aims to recognize the strengths of each individual as well as the collective power of group problem solving and community organizing. At least two workshops are offered each day, including photography, afterschool homework assistance, leadership development, financial literacy, college access, yoga, group problem solving and other personal and group enrichment sessions. The program works with Latino high school students throughout Baltimore City. The youth come to CASA de Maryland for these sessions and occasionally travel to Patterson Park or other nearby facilities.

NextSteps, Managing Life after Trauma

With funding from the Centers for Disease Control and U.S. Department of Defense, the JH SOPH Injury Center’s faculty are developing and evaluating the efficacy of a computer-based self-management program, NextSteps, for reducing secondary conditions and improving function following major lower limb trauma. The intervention will build on widely accepted self-management programs developed for persons with arthritis, as well as components of a face-to-face self-management program recently developed by the research team for civilians with long-standing limb loss.

NIEHS Center in Urban Environmental Health
Community Outreach and Education Core (COEC)

At the crux of the NIEHS Center’s philosophy on community-based research is that education is a critical and essential component of this process. COEC is an extension of this philosophy. Accordingly, COEC seeks to establish partnerships with credible community agencies so as to create the opportunity to respond to specific concerns identified by community leaders and residents. These types of effective partnerships generate mutually beneficial relationships and assure positive outcomes through the translation of information and outcomes from the NIEHS Center’s research foci and facility cores into educational programs, into knowledge applied to public health and environmental health policy.

Stork’s Nest

Stork’s Nest, a cooperative project between the Zeta Phi Beta sorority, March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation and Johns Hopkins Bayview Medical Center, is an incentive program to encourage women to see their care provider early and often during pregnancy. Pregnant women are referred to a local Stork’s Nest via their clinic, HMO or other health care facility where they are receiving prenatal care. The care providers of the mothers-to-be will determine if they need assistance. There are no specific requirements for mothers to be eligible for the program other than a displayed need for assistance. Once enough points are accumulated, mothers-to-be may schedule shopping appointments. Points are earned by obtaining regular prenatal care, educational classes and getting proper immunizations. Mothers may continue shopping at the Stork’s Nest until their children are twelve months old.

Trauma Survivors Network (TSN)
The Trauma Survivors Network (TSN) is a partnership between the Injury Center and the American Trauma Society. Its goal is to ease the burden of injury and its consequences for patients and their families through the exchange of reliable information, education, peer support and, most importantly, promotion of self-management programs. Vision for Baltimore

Between fall 2016 and summer 2019, Baltimore City Health Department (BCHD) will provide school-based vision screening to all students in Baltimore City Public Schools (BCPS) in grades pre-K through eighth grade. Students who fail the vision screening will be eligible for vision services by Vision To Learn (VTL), which will conduct comprehensive eye exams, and provide glasses, free of charge, to students who need them. A Johns Hopkins University research team is collaborating with BCHD, BCPS and VTL to assist with implementation of vision services and measure their impact on academic performance. The study is funded by the Robert M. and Diane v.S. Levy Family. Johns Hopkins provides program support through a collaboration between the School of Education and the Wilmer Eye Institute. To date, over 5,000 free pairs of glasses have been provided to Baltimore students.

901 Arts

Better Waverly’s 901 Arts is a volunteer-driven program which serves local youth within a roughly 10 by 10-block neighborhood catchment zone (approximately 1,000 homes). Eighty total youth participants range in age from 6 to 17 years old. Opportunities for youth include urban gardening (five local sites run in partnership with Baltimore Green Space), music (on-site music lessons in instruments ranging from guitar, bass, piano, violin and glockenspiel), and art (on site instruction in writing and fine arts). The program runs as an afterschool component during the school year and a 6-week summer program in the summer. To engage high school students, there is a teen discussion group, job assistance, and SAT/homework help. The mission of the group states a goal of “improving the life quality of youth through greening and education support.”

The Sar Levitan Center at the Johns Hopkins Institute for Policy Studies and the Mayor’s Office of Employment Development partnered in creating and operating an innovation high school, the Academy for College and Career Exploration, whose mission is to help Baltimore high school students develop a love of learning, a constructive direction for their lives, and confidence in their own abilities to succeed. The school’s educational philosophy, grounded in the blending of high-quality, standards-based curricula with “real-world” applications and experiences, promotes the delivery of instruction that is individualized, competency-based, and focused on helping students plan for and achieve successful roles in society. Tutoring is also provided free of charge by JHU Center for Social Concern.

Aspiring Scientists, Engineers and Physicians Partnership (ASEPP)

Careers in science, engineering and math are rarely considered as a possibility by urban youth, in part due to a lack of exposure to successful role models. Through mentoring efforts, students will be more confident in their abilities to succeed. Through weekly experiments, ASEPP excites students and teaches through non-lecture methods. The age range of students served is between 9 and 14 and visits to schools are weekly.

The Baltimore Curriculum Project (BCP) has its origins at the Calvert School, which had been tasked with taking their method of direct teaching and adapting it for use in some of the public schools in Baltimore. BCP has been partnering with Baltimore City Schools for over 15 years. Their mission is to develop, implement, and advocate for an innovative, sustainable, and replicable education model that improves student outcomes. In so doing, the Baltimore Curriculum Project helps raise educational standards and opportunities for disadvantaged youth and Baltimore City schools. BCP empowers neighborhood schools to improve curricula and student outcomes by providing them with the tools that they need to succeed. BCP has seen incredible results both in student achievement and teacher confidence in the classroom from their unique one-on-one approach.

City Steps
AIRS (AIDS Interfaith Residential Services) has developed a range of programming under the City Steps banner that addresses the specific problems of transition-aged homeless youth ages 14 to 24. Interventions at such a critical time in life have the capacity to be transforming, and in doing so, prevent future episodes of homelessness or exposure to trauma. The JHU Consultant Group put together a comprehensive list of funding sources to support City Steps’ programming for non-residential, community revitalization services (particularly life skills) for homeless and unstably-housed youth. Volunteer opportunities include tutoring and mentorship.

Claiming Our Future – A Career Exploration Day
This all-day event features success stories from young adults of color from across Baltimore and areas similar to East Baltimore who have succeeded in college and professional careers. Students participate in a series of life skills workshops on topics such as reducing violence and bullying, keys to successful career preparation, and building healthy lifestyle habits. Fifth grade students have the opportunity for hands-on experience with high-fidelity patient simulators. Students were also able to learn about health careers related to patients seeking treatment in an emergency room.

Club at Collington Square
The Club at Collington Square is an academic and community arts-based after-school and summer camp program for children and youth ages 5 to 14 living in the Collington Square neighborhood of East Baltimore. Established in 2001, The Club offers a safe space to over 30 elementary and middle school students after school and throughout the summer. Although Club youth face a myriad of challenges, The Club works to provide the academic and emotional support they need to succeed. Our mission is to help shape strong, responsible, respectful, and successful youth through academic and arts programming. The Club is committed to a holistic approach in helping youth realize their own success through character and confidence building. The Club maintains a food and clothing bank for parents in need and serves as a resource to community members.

Code in the Schools
Code in the Schools empowers Baltimore City youth to thrive in the 21st century economy by expanding access to quality computer science education and building pathways from school to jobs and higher education. Through a partnership with Baltimore City Public School System CIS provides elementary & middle-school Computer Science instruction full time during the school year. By focusing on youth traditionally under-represented in technology fields, CIS works to eliminate structural barriers and inequities in education and industry.

Community-Based Learning
Community-Based Learning (CBL) is a pedagogical model that connects classroom-based work with meaningful community involvement and experiences. Within the context of equitable partnership, community organizations and JHU students mutually benefit from the CBL experience both by meeting course objectives and by addressing community-identified goals. Students may engage with groups including nonprofits, government agencies, grassroots collectives, and other educational institutions.

The Community School
The Community School was founded in 1982 by Tom Culotta along with residents of the Remington community in Baltimore. This academic and mentoring program has worked with hundreds of students, helping them to stabilize their lives, advance their education, earn a high school diploma and go on to college. In the summer of 2013, The Community School became a Maryland State certified private high school. It is governed by a Board of Trustees with the active support and involvement of a Board of Advisors, sponsors, students, parents, alumni, and supporters from the general community.

Earl’s Place / United Ministries

Earl’s Place is a transitional housing program providing long-term (up to two years) housing and supportive services to seventeen men at a time. Residents are provided with a permanent address and a place to receive mail and phone calls. Most importantly, they have a place to call home, where concerns such as having a clean, safe place to sleep, shower, and keep their belongings is alleviated. For some this is the first time they have had a key to a place of their own. Ultimately, the residents are assisted in obtaining affordable, permanent housing, and one year of formal after-care is provided to help ensure success.

Elmer A. Henderson: A Johns Hopkins Partnership School

In 2014, Henderson-Hopkins, a new state-of-the-art 100,000 square foot early childhood center and school opened. The new Henderson-Hopkins K-8 Elementary/Middle and the Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Early Childhood Center provides the backdrop for personalizing the educational experience of each child while meeting the needs of the broader East Baltimore community. From the flexible learning spaces to the art and music studios, to the health suite and family support space, the facility is designed to maximize personalized learning and is accessible to the community for evenings, weekends, and summers. Innovative technology further drives the Next Generation Learning (NGL) approach that defines Henderson-Hopkins. NGL has been defined as the blended learning personalization that is possible when face-to-face instruction is combined with computer assisted instruction to maximize learning outcomes. Students, teachers, and parents regularly review data dashboards to adjust learning opportunities to maximize student growth.

JHHS Adopt-A-Class / Career Day Program

The Adopt-A-Class/Career Day Program mission is to introduce fourth graders at local elementary schools—Henderson Hopkins, Tench Tilghman, City Springs and Inner Harbor East Academy—to the careers offered at hospitals and to expand their knowledge of career choices in general. To put theory into practice, teams are created with three Johns Hopkins’ volunteers from different departments on each team. Each team is assigned to a fourth grade classroom. The teams visit the same classroom once a month for an hour from October through March to address a special topic. Each team member does a presentation on his/her part of the topic. At the end of each session, student questions are entertained, and they are able to record reflections of their experience in their journals.

Johns Hopkins Summer Jobs Program
The Johns Hopkins Summer Jobs Program provides a six-week, paid summer internship for students of Baltimore City high schools. Participants work 30 hours per week in a variety of departments at The Johns Hopkins Hospital and the University. Students also take part in a series of career development seminars, focusing on topics such as job readiness, workplace etiquette, customer service and financial literacy. The program promotes exposure to careers and workplace culture while providing an educational experience that promotes mentoring and fosters personal responsibility. Due to increased Johns Hopkins support and departmental interest, the number of students in the program has increased steadily over the years, from 25 interns in 1994 to over 450 interns projected for 2019.

Junior Bach
The Junior Bach program allows Peabody student composers to mentor sixth through eighth graders at St. Ignatius Loyola Academy, an all-boys private school. The youngsters develop their musical ideas during weekly after-school lessons, the Peabody student composers capture these ideas in notated form, and then other Peabody students collaborate to perform the middle schoolers’ compositions in concerts held at Peabody.

MERIT Baltimore

MERIT (The Medical Education Resources Initiative for Teens) transforms Baltimore City high school students into Baltimore’s health care leaders by preparing them for success in college and beyond. To accomplish these goals, MERIT provides a holistic support system for three years including weekly Saturday sessions focused on academic enrichment and college admissions guidance, paid summer internships in hospitals and laboratories, and longitudinal mentoring. Scholars are selected during their sophomore year of high school and participate in intensive MERIT programming until graduation, at which point they become MERIT alumni and receive continued guidance throughout college.

Music Teacher Mentor Program

The Music Teacher Mentor Program was founded in 1998 by then Peabody Preparatory Dean Fran Zarubick. Zarubick and others at Peabody wanted to address the high turnover rate among the city’s elementary and middle school music teachers, and at the same time promote the arts and engage the community. By pairing new music teachers with mentors from Peabody, the program stabilizes and improves the schools’ music programs and inspires a new generation of artists. On average, the program provides support to roughly 70 teachers in 70 schools.

Opera Outreach

Annually Opera Outreach produces a 50-minute opera for performance in schools and communities. The plot thread of the original is maintained, the main cuts coming in the choruses, the ballet sequences, and the music for the parents. The production is fully costumed, and presented on a unique revolving set. The presentation is framed by a brief introduction beforehand and a question-and-answer session afterwards, in which the audience gets to interact directly with the performers.

Writers in Baltimore Schools

Writers in Baltimore Schools (WBS) seeks to provide low-income middle school students with a vibrant environment for literary development through in-school, after-school, and summer creative writing workshops taught by Baltimore college students. Compared to higher income peers, the reading assessment scores of low-income Baltimore students drop significantly between grades 5-8. WBS believes that by supplementing low-income students’ middle school language arts learning with an intensive program in literary reading and creative writing, these students can enter high school with a renewed interest in literature. WBS steps in where the traditional language arts classroom falls short by giving students a smaller, more participatory setting to hone reading and writing skills.

Associated Black Charities
Associated Black Charities (ABC) was founded in 1985 to represent and respond to issues of special significance to Maryland’s African American communities. Concerned that needs within these communities were not being adequately addressed, a group of area ministers and businessmen came together to call for an organization that would raise and distribute funds to organizations targeting needs within Maryland’s African American communities. ABC continues to address issues of economic empowerment and wealth building, as well as the growing health disparities impacting communities in the region.

Charles Village Civic Association
The Charles Village Civic Association (CVCA) was chartered in 1945 as the University Heights Improvement Association to promote business, property improvement, and single family residency in the neighborhood. The name change came in 1969 to coincide with the neighborhood’s rebirth as Charles Village. Over the years, the CVCA has forged constructive partnerships with city and state officials, the Johns Hopkins University, and the Baltimore City Police Department (Northern District).

Comiendo Juntos at Assisi House

Comiendo Juntos is a community program for seniors that started with the support of Baltimore City’s Commission on Aging to address Baltimore’s influx of aging Hispanic immigrants. Twice a month, approximately 20 Hispanic seniors gather at Assisi House at St. Patrick’s Church for food, community, and presentations from the community on relevant topics and services. Members of the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine and Johns Hopkins Medicine International work together to secure volunteers, funding, and speakers from Hopkins, many of whom are bilingual students, clinicians and physicians who present on health topics relevant to the senior population, such as diabetes, nutrition, cancer, high blood pressure, stroke, heart health, and glaucoma.

Community Impact Internship Program (CIIP)

The Community Impact Internship Program is based on a simple proposition: that community engagement provides tangible benefits to JHU students and to the communities which they touch. The first class of 25 interns were matched with agencies and nonprofit organizations doing good work across the city and focus on a diverse set of city issues—assisting with disaster planning for emergency shelters, helping with a campaign to modernize public school buildings, working at a clinic serving the uninsured, or running afternoon activities for Baltimore kids.

Cooking 4 Love

Cooking 4 Love is an organization that combines cooking with service to community. Student volunteers will have the opportunity to not only learn how to cook and enjoy the meals they make, but also offers students a chance to benefit the community with their delicious creations. Once a week students deliver and serve food to a local women’s shelter in Baltimore. It is an eye-opening experience and during these weekly trips off campus, students see the diversity and culture of the community.

HEBCAC (Historic East Baltimore Community Action Coalition)

Historic East Baltimore Community Action Coalition is a nonprofit community development organization founded in 1994 by the Johns Hopkins University, city and state officials and area residents. Its mission is to work with residents and other stakeholders to improve neighborhoods in the 220-block area bounded by Edison Highway, Aisquith Street, North Avenue, and Fayette Street. Since its founding, HEBCAC has implemented a series of programs that address both the physical infrastructure and human capital issues faced by residents of the neighborhoods within which it works. HEBCAC is governed by a sixteen member board of directors that consists of nine elected community representatives, three members appointed by the Johns Hopkins University, The Johns Hopkins Hospital, and the Kennedy Krieger Institute, three members appointed by the City of Baltimore, and one member appointed by the Governor of Maryland. HEBCAC currently employs a professional staff of thirty.

Homewood Community Partners Initiative (HCPI)

The Homewood Community Partners Initiative (HCPI) grows out of a greater understanding that the health and well-being of the Johns Hopkins University (JHU) Homewood campus is inextricably tied to the physical, social, and economic well-being of its surrounding neighborhoods. JHU’s response to that link comes from a combination of enlightened self-interest and a moral obligation that dates back to the founding of the university in 1876. Major urban universities, competing for talent, acknowledge that the off-campus experience in many ways rivals in importance a rich and well-established academic tradition.

Johns Hopkins Neighborhood Fund
At the request of former Johns Hopkins University president, William Brody, the Johns Hopkins Neighborhood Fund was created and commenced operations in the fall of 2007 as an addition to the university’s United Way Campaign. The fund assists community-oriented organizations by making the most of the significant volunteer and financial contributions of Johns Hopkins entities and their employees in five key areas: health, education, public safety, employment, and community strengthening. The fund targets the communities proximate to many Johns Hopkins campuses. In just the last 5 years, the fund has provided grants totaling in excess of $1 Million to neighborhood projects.

Johns Hopkins Urban Health Institute Partnership

Drawing on the expertise of neighborhood residents, educators, health professionals, philanthropic organizations and elected officials, Johns Hopkins is working to change the health and well-being of children and families in East Baltimore and beyond. As a participant in this partnership, the School of Education seeks to strengthen the linkages between education and health issues and practices. The School of Education will examine how health and education issues intersect to account at least in part for the low academic achievement experienced in urban communities.

Juvenile Justice Jeopardy

JHU volunteers and the Government and Community Affairs office partnered with Strategies for Youth to bring the Juvenile Justice Jeopardy program to Baltimore through a Diversity Innovation Grant. The goal of Juvenile Justice Jeopardy is to engage youth in important conversations about the juvenile justice system and the potential consequences of their actions. The game offers a structured framework for correcting misconceptions and inviting youth to participate in meaningful dialogue about their views and experiences of the juvenile justice system. We are actively looking to expand JJJ and looking for partners in Baltimore.

KidzTable, a social enterprise of St. Vincent de Paul of Baltimore, produces about 7,500 healthy and delicious meals a day for low income children, families and seniors. KidzTable has long-term partnerships with Head Start programs, summer and after-school programs, homeless shelters, adult day care programs and child care centers, which serve our meals to their customers. KidzTable is known for serving a fresh fruit at each lunch and supper, using whole grains wherever possible, and dedicated customer service. About 90% of the sites served are either in or adjoining a “food desert.” KidzTable partners with St. Vincent de Paul’s food service workforce development program, Next Course, which is co-located and is an integral part of food production. About 100 students are part of this program each year, 85% of whom graduate with a ServSafe food service certificate, enabling them to gain employment where they earn close to or a full living wage.

The center is a coordinating place for East Baltimore men and their families that increases the accessibility of services and community awareness. The center addresses their specific needs through a holistic array of services that are designed to meet men where they are and move them toward self-empowerment. Various volunteer opportunities are available. The JHU Consultant Group helped develop a grant application on behalf of the center to the Abell Foundation for funds to implement a component of their newly-revitalized comprehensive male service program, Rites of Passage (a program for men, ages 17 to 25).

Moveable Feast
Moveable Feast serves over 900 individuals who are affected by HIV/AIDS including their dependent children. Moveable Feast provides nutritionally appropriate meals and nutrition counseling to people with HIV/AIDS in the Baltimore metropolitan area. Moveable Feast teaches culinary, kitchen and life skills to clients. The 12-week curriculum focuses on food preparation and safety, cooking fundamentals, and job readiness, and prepares students for employment in the food service industry. Moveable Feast also operates a shuttle service in Baltimore City for homeless individuals. The shuttle stops at sites regularly used by homeless people including shelters and social service agencies. The JHM Department of Emergency Medicine also supports the Ride for the Feast, which is part of Moveable Feast.

Neighborhood Design Center

Since its establishment in 1968, the mission of the nonprofit Neighborhood Design Center (NDC) has been to improve neighborhood livability, viability, and sustainability by providing pro-bono design and planning services in support of community-sponsored initiatives. NDC does this by mobilizing volunteer architects, planners, landscape architects, engineers, and other design professionals who donate their professional services to help groups in the initial stages of neighborhood revitalization efforts. NDC not only takes on projects that serve the public good but also strives to achieve the following community service goals: strengthening community participation in neighborhood improvement efforts; educating the public about the value of good design, planning, and preservation as community revitalization tools; and serving as a catalyst for increased investment in neighborhood development. Specific East Baltimore projects include McElderry Park Community Center, Patterson Dog Park, Amazing Port Street Gardens, Chesapeake Habitat, Baltimore City Charter Schools, and Butchers Hill Development.

Operation PULSE

Operation PULSE (People United to Live in a Safe Environment) was developed by CURE (Clergy United for Renewal in East Baltimore) through a partnership with John Hopkins Medical Institutions in 1992. This crime prevention ministry has trained over one thousand volunteers from CURE churches, community residents, and other individuals that elect to earn community service hours to watch, patrol and evangelize via a non-traditional citizens on patrol program. Operation PULSE members volunteer to patrol in East Baltimore neighborhoods. Operation PULSE conducts a variety of crime prevention programs for churches, senior groups, schools, outdoor community displays, and businesses. Recently, Johns Hopkins East Baltimore Community Affairs assisted Operation PULSE with its National Night Out initiative.

Parks and People Foundation
Since 1984, Parks and People Foundation has worked to improve the quality of life in Baltimore’s neighborhoods. Staff, volunteers and partners in the community have developed innovative solutions to issues facing Baltimore City including the restoration of neighborhoods and its natural resources as well as the academic enrichment and motivation of community children. In order to realize the vision of a healthy environment where people live, work, learn and play, Parks and People have formed a strategy targeting two major fields of endeavor: Great Parks, Clean Streams and Green Communities—helping to improve the physical, social and environmental quality of neighborhoods through greening activities and forming networks among communities to sustain natural resources; and Motivating Youth—programs nurturing children and supporting communities by working together to provide enriching activities for youth. Parks and People Foundation is a 2009 Johns Hopkins Neighborhood Fund recipient.

Tuscany-Canterbury Neighborhood Association

The Tuscany-Canterbury Neighborhood Association (TCNA) has served its community for over 40 years by acting as a forum for communication within the neighborhood; furthering educational, charitable, and other nonprofit activities in and for the neighborhood; assisting the neighborhood in developing positions on such matters as zoning, parking, traffic control, preservation, and other quality of life issues, and representing the interests of the neighborhood before city and state agencies. On a day-to-day basis, TCNA is active in promoting neighborhood safety, tranquility, beautification and upkeep and social events.

Weinberg Housing and Resource Center

Catholic Charities shares Baltimore City’s vision of making homelessness in Baltimore rare and brief through the Weinberg Housing and Resource Center (WHRC). This low-barrier shelter houses 275 residents, providing each resident with case management, workshops and resource referrals, breakfast and dinner (lunch is served at Our Daily Bread, across the street), and a caring staff committed to the Catholic Charities mission of “Love in Action.” The Center also houses a convalescent center operated by Healthcare for the Homeless. In this special unit on the third floor, people without homes who have just been released from the hospital can find a place to recuperate under medical supervision

Wyman Park Community Association
The Wyman Park Community Association (WPCA) was formed in 1968 to preserve the park and see that applicable laws, especially zoning laws, were enforced. Over the years the WPCA has been a successful advocate on issues affecting the park and the Wyman Park neighborhood. The WPCA publishes a monthly community newsletter, holds regular neighborhood community meetings, and sponsors several neighborhood events throughout the year.
